

General Atlantic Announces Acquisition of Iron Park Capital and Formation of General Atlantic Credit

General Atlantic Credit builds on momentum of Atlantic Park to expand firm's capabilities across private and public credit

New York – October 26, 2022 – General Atlantic, a leading global growth equity firm, today announced that it has agreed to acquire Iron Park Capital Partners, LP (“Iron Park”), a global investment manager with deep experience across public and private credit markets, to create General Atlantic Credit (“GA Credit”).

GA Credit will expand and enhance the firm’s ability to provide creative capital solutions to high-quality companies in need of a strategic partner at multiple stages of corporate and economic lifecycles. Tripp Smith, CEO and founder of Iron Park, will be CEO of GA Credit.

Iron Park currently offers a range of credit solutions that are rooted in a robust and well-developed investment process designed to meet the specific needs of investors and borrowers. The firm’s investment offerings include funds that invest in both the public and private credit markets, including Atlantic Park, a joint venture formed with General Atlantic in 2020.

Atlantic Park provides structured equity and debt financing to businesses around the world that require capital to support M&A, refinancing, recapitalization and growth initiatives. To date, the joint venture has committed over $2.2 billion to 13 companies.

In addition to Atlantic Park, Iron Park manages several public credit strategies.

“We believe that Iron Park’s experience in public and private credit strategies, combined with General Atlantic’s global platform and sector expertise, creates a distinct advantage,” said Bill Ford, Chairman and CEO of General Atlantic. “Over the course of our partnership with Tripp and Iron Park, we have developed a deep mutual respect, and our global teams together have originated many exciting opportunities to provide strategic capital solutions to a broad set of companies. We are confident that GA Credit will stand out as an attractive product to businesses looking for active support, while also creating new offerings for investors looking to optimize their portfolios.”

The size of private credit has grown on average 13.5% annually over the last decade¹, with the total levered credit market now representing a more than $3.5 trillion investable opportunity set for GA Credit². Moreover, General Atlantic’s longstanding investing sectors – including Consumer, Financial Services, Healthcare and Technology – represent more than half of the leveraged finance market.³

“With the changing market environment, companies are facing complex business challenges at a pace and scale unmatched in many years,” said Tripp Smith. “We anticipate significant demand for partners with sector expertise, access to flexible capital and value-add capabilities. The deeply experienced GA Credit team draws from the strengths of Iron Park and General
